

BIODATA

MSc Dinh Viet Chien is currently in charge of the Laboratory of Heavy Metals and Minerals, National Institute For Food Control, Viet Nam. He graduated with a bachelor's degree in analytical chemistry from the VNU University of Science in 2011. He has extensive experience in food testing using chromatography and spectroscopy techniques such as HPLC, LC-MS/MS, AAS, ICP-OES, ICP-MS. His main research direction currently focuses on the analysis and assessment of the risk of contamination of metal and non-metallic elements, also their speciation in food and environmental samples.

