Food Ingredients Business Unit
Saint Louis, Missouri.

I am a quality and food safety professional with more than 30 years of experience in the global food ingredients industry. Currently, I serve as Director of Global Quality & Food Safety for IFF's Food Ingredients Business Unit, where I lead global quality strategies, regulatory compliance initiatives, food safety programs, and continuous improvement efforts across international manufacturing operations.

Throughout my career, I have developed expertise in quality management systems, supplier quality, regulatory compliance, audit leadership, and risk management. I have had the opportunity to work closely with operations, commercial, regulatory, and supply chain teams to build strong quality cultures and ensure products consistently meet customer and regulatory expectations. Prior to my current role, I held global quality leadership positions supporting protein ingredient businesses, including the former SOLAE® organization. Earlier in my career, I spent more than eight years in research and development, contributing to product innovation, process improvement, and commercialization efforts.

I earned a Bachelor of Science degree in Food Science from Purdue University. I am also an inventor on two U.S. patents (5,827,682 and 5,852,792) and have submitted four Drug Master Files to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, experiences that reflect my passion for innovation, technical excellence, and regulatory stewardship.

Outside of work, I am fortunate to share time with my wife, Tamera, and our three children, two sons and a daughter, ranging in age from 16 to 32. We are also blessed with a nine-year-old granddaughter who brings tremendous joy to our family. When I am away from the office, I enjoy spending time outdoors camping, fishing, and participating in water sports. Our family also shares a passion for sports, especially ice hockey and baseball. Most of all, I value spending quality time with family and friends and creating lasting memories through travel, recreation, and shared experiences.
